2 TRUAX MEN KILLED IN JET'S CRASH HERE

Rescue Squad Probes Watery Hole Where Plane Crashed

Life lines and stretched ladders were used by rescue squad members of Truax Field in probing for occupants of the crashed F-80 jet plane which fell into a marshy section of the University of Wisconsin arboretum Monday afternoon. The plane was believed to have struck from the southwest direction, and exploded, creating the water-filled hole shown. Parts of the airplane can be seen in the foreground.

Mechanical Fault Believed to Blame

By JUNE DIECKMANN
(State Journal Staff Writer)

Two Truax Field officers, both fathers of families, were killed Monday afternoon when their F-80C Scorpion jet crashed and exploded in the swampy arboretum shoreline of Lake Wingra.

The victims were the pilot, First Lt. John W. Schmidt, 28, a native of Del Rio, Tex., who lived at 10 Sherman terrace, and the radar operator, Capt. Glen E. Collins, 30, of 24 Craig ave., a native of Indianapolis, Ind.

Search Halted
A search for the bodies Monday, with floodlights illuminating the mucky, water-filled area over which the disintegrated plane was scattered, was halted until today when a crane will be used to lift part of the plane from where it is buried in mud.
The parachutes of both fliers were found unopened amid the wreckage.

A sudden mechanical failure apparently caused the plane to crash, Truax officials told The Wisconsin State Journal Monday night.

They "reasoned (that) it must have been an abrupt dielectric failure because both Lt. Schmidt and Capt. Collins were wearing life preservers and they were unable to keep the jet aloft long enough to bail out or radio a distress signal.

Board Starts Probe
An Air Force board of inquiry began investigating immediately to determine the exact cause of the crash if possible.
The force of the explosion shook Madison and suburban homes as far away as 2 miles, breaking windows in some houses close by. The nearest homes were about three blocks away on Covell st., just off Arboretum dr.

The rear of the smoking plane, as it seemed low about 1 p. m., coming from the west over the south side of the city, attracted many persons, who watched it make the fatal dive.

Witnesses said the plane exploded after crashing with a deadened thud into the marsh. Parts of the plane flew hundreds of feet in the air, some landing in Lake Wingra and others as far as 500 yards up the shoreline, the witnesses reported.

Canopy 400 Yards Away
The plane's canopy, which must be removed by automatic controls before the fliers can eject themselves, was found about 400 yards from where the plane crashed. A 20 mm. cannon from the plane was found nearly 500 feet away.

The jet dived at an estimated 550 to 600 miles an hour into a patch of marsh reeds just 10 feet from the water.

16 Nabbed in Hurley Deny Vice Charges
SIXTEEN persons arrested in weekend raids here by state beverage tax agents today, in connection with vice charges brought before County Judge H. C. Trembath.

All 16, arrested at five Silver st. taverns, were released on bonds ranging from $500 to $50. Trials were set for Dec. 10-14.

Jet That Crashed Here Was 'Corrected' Model, Shoup Says
The Air Force's F-80C Scorpion jet, the type of plane which crashed Monday afternoon, killing two Truax Field fliers on the Lake Wingra shore, has a "corrected" design, a spokesman (The) jetting with very few accidents.

Many Watch, Hear Plane's Death Dive

Numerous persons watched the F-80 Scorpion jet, with its two occupants, make its death plunge into the swamps along the Lake Wingra shoreline of the University arboretum Monday afternoon.

State Journal reporters interviewed witnesses and obtained these graphic descriptions of the air tragedy:

Mrs. Donald Alme, 920 Dane st., described the scene as a "horrible experience."

"I was standing by our mailbox and saw the jet right over our house," she said.

"It was quite low and I knew it was a jet, but there wasn't any noise like you always hear from a jet. It was just still-like," she continued.

Mrs. Alme said she continued to watch it and "suddenly there was something just like an explosion—oh, an awful, huge noise."

"The jet then plummeted to earth—just so fast your eye could hardly follow it," she related.

"I thought it crashed in the lake because I could see spray—just like water and dust—rise up from behind the trees. I didn't see a parachute. It

Budget Board Drops Golf Course Fund, Asks No Tax Rate Increase

By GEORGE RODGERSON
(State Journal Staff Writer)

After eliminating funds for a new West side golf course from the 1954 city budget, and transferring some other items of capital improvement to bond issues, the city Board of Estimates voted Monday night not to raise property taxes next year.

The board adopted a motion by Mayor George Farnier to recommend a $32 per $1,000 of assessed valuation tax rate, the same as this year's rate, as it would up its work on a $17,654,244 budget. The budget will be voted on by the city council in December.

Nekoosa Father of 5 Killed in Truck Fall

MATHER, Wis. (AP)—Glen A. Goodness, 30, Nekoosa, the father of five children, was killed instantly Monday when he fell from the cab of a moving pickup truck three miles west of here.

Sheriff Paul Coper of Jackson County said Goodness apparently was thrown from the truck when it hit a soft shoulder or a bump on County Trunk Hh. The truck, driven by Harry Weaver, also of Nekoosa, remained upright and stayed on the roadway.

UN to Begin POW Explanations Soon

PANMUNJOM, Tuesday (UPI)—The United Nations (UN) indicated today that "come home" interviews with American, British, and South Korean prisoners refusing repatriation will begin as soon as minor procedural details are clarified by the neutral Nations Repatriation commission.

The women arrested were charged either with solicitation or with being inmates of houses of prostitution.

Two owners and one bartender also were charged with operating dice games.

from the south edge of the lake, directly across Lake Wingra from Vilas park.

The crash and the accompanying explosion ejected out a 30-foot "pond" which filled quickly with muddy water to a depth of about 18 feet.

Martin Lemberger, 51½ S. Brooks st., a former Navy diver, joined the Air Force search party. Parts of the plane were recovered from the quicksand-type mud of the "pond."

No Fire Develops
Trux Field firemen sped to the scene, but any flames that accompanied the crash had been extinguished by the force of the explosion and the marsh water.

Officials were unable to identify the plane and fliers positively until about two hours after the crash when a red and white striped parachute, resembling an American flag, was pulled from the wreckage.

The chute, which was still partially unopened in its canopy case, was a serious obstacle, which assured Trux officials that the plane had been flown by Lt. Schmidt and Capt. Collins.

"The two men had been away about 35 minutes after being along and in no formation on a routine training flight."

Both officers had been stationed at Trux for about two months. Capt. Collins joined the Air Force as a pilot in 1942, and advanced to the rank of captain after serving in the Pacific theater during World War II.

Lt. Schmidt also was a veteran of pilot duty in the Pacific theater during the war.

Surviving the officers are Mrs. Collins and their two daughters, Vicki, 8, a Douglas school pupil, and Glenda, 6 months old. Mrs. Schmidt, an experienced mother, and their 20-month-old son, John W. Schmidt Jr.

Mossadegh Makes Three Walkout Tries

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh angrily wrestled with his defense attorney in a third attempt to walk out on his treason trial Monday but was pushed back into his seat by court attendants.

"You can only keep me here if you tie my hands and feet with strong ropes," the former premier blurted at the climax of the most violent day of his two-week old trial.

Mossadegh made two earlier attempts Monday to walk out in protest against statements made by the chief prosecutor. This time he tried to climb over a bench toward his government-appointed counsel, Col. Jalil Bozorgmehr. Bozorgmehr stopped him.

In other attempts Mossadegh hurled insults at Bozorgmehr but this was his first attempt at violence. He was denounced by Bozorgmehr and once tried to dismiss him.

The 73-year-old ex-premier was most incensed at attacks on his alleged lack of religion.

Mossadegh leaped to his feet in anger when the court announced the tribunal.

"This man has no religion as he not only killed so many people but he also flagrantly violated his own oath on the Koran to be loyal to the Shah."

The prosecutor was referring to the riots which swept through the battle between supporters of Mossadegh and those of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The aged former premier, quivering with anger, interrupted to shout:

"This man is inciting the people to kill me. My life is in danger and the court is responsible for my safety."

When Azemoudeh again referred to Mossadegh as "this godless fellow," the former premier stamped his feet and banged on the desk before him.

"Stop him from attempting to kill me! I can tolerate here and listen to all this," Mossadegh shouted as he made a dash for the exit door.

Court ushers intercepted his flight and made him sit down. Mossadegh made another attempt a short time later and, for a while, successfully warded off the usher's effort to lead him back to his seat.

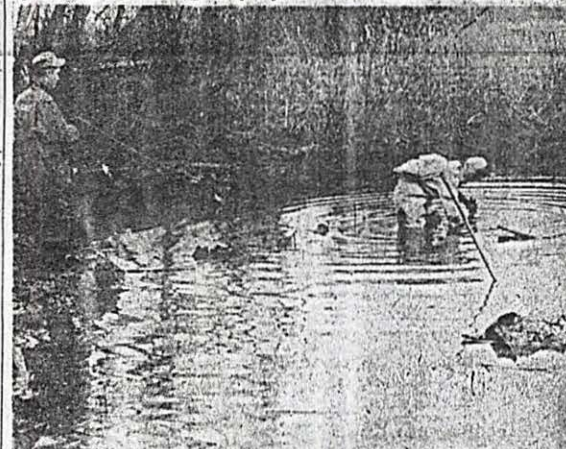

"I simply will not face this man here so long as he continues slandering me and inciting the people against me," Mossadegh shouted.

Joe Buck, 74, Bay City, died Sunday night at a Madison hospital.

Richard Peterson, 22, Camp Douglas, died Monday night at a Madison hospital.

Many Hear, See Plane's Death Dive

Just went down so fast the man didn't have a chance," Mrs. Alme said.

Mrs. Juanita Gray, who lives on the Eckstein farm along the Stevens rd., about 2 miles from where the plane crashed, was the first to report it to officials.

"I heard the plane roaring across the hill and thought it was going to land in the marsh south of my house," Mrs. Gray told The State Journal.

"After that, there was a real loud thud and I knew it had crashed."

"Nobody jumped out of the plane," Mrs. Gray said.

George Parks, 295 Russell st., a carpenter, was working on the roof of Nichols school in Monona when he saw something fall from the plane near the Fish Hatchery rd.

"I heard the roar of the jet and I don't know why, but I looked up. I just suspected he was in trouble, and sure as heck, he was gone just like that. The whole thing exploded when it hit the ground, but I couldn't see any flames," Grosse said.

Mrs. Fred R. Adams, who lives in Forest Park about a mile from the crash scene, said the explosion was so strong that it cracked one of the living room storm windows.

David Welch, 2027 Madison st., reported that the plane exploded after it dived into the water.

"I watched it coming in over the Nichols school with a trail of smoke behind it. There was a loud thud and almost before I had time to turn my head, it exploded like thunder. There were flames and a great deal of noise in the lake," Welch said.

Lloyd R. Burr, 827 Dane st., said he had just come home for dinner and was in the house when he heard a noise in the air like a backfire.

"By the time we got out of the house we only saw the tail of the jet going below the trees," he said.

"There was no fire that we saw," he said.

Probe Reveals 2 Bandits Empty Janesville Tavern Tilt and Rob Patrons

JANESVILLE—Two armed robbers Monday night emptied a Janesville tavern cash register and took $51 from seven patrons after they had spent most of the evening in the tavern drinking beer, playing billiards, and eating hardboiled eggs.

Dale Barry, lone bartender on duty and son of the owner of Barry's bar, 309 Western ave., said it was impossible to determine immediately how much money was in the cash register.

Madison and Dane county police were alerted after the robbery because the initial rough descriptions of the Janesville bandits resembled men who were from the secret business establishments recently reported.

Janesville police said one man was about 27 years old, about 5-9 in height, and weighed about 160 pounds. He had dark, curly hair in a "flat-top" style, wore a maroon jacket and khaki Army shirt and trousers. Victims of the holdup said he was talkative and wielded a dark, handled .32 caliber revolver.

"The second man, about 24 or 25 years of age, of the same general build as the first, wore a light gray jacket, dark brown trousers and had an adhesive patch on his chin. Witnesses said he had dark, curly hair smoothed down with oil. His companion called him "Jack" tavern patrons reported. He did not display a gun.

Janesville police said witnesses held them by the back of the neck in a 1953 Ford Crestline model with a light blue bottom and a dark blue top. The car bore Wisconsin plates, the witnesses agreed, but the numbers were unknown.

Janesville police the pair entered the tavern early in the evening. They spent considerable time drinking beer and playing billiards. About 9 p. m., they left returning almost immediately.

Then the bandits drank two beers each and ate two hard-boiled eggs before announcing the hold-up. One of the men herded the tavern customers away from the bar and seated them at tables before relieving them of money from their wallets. Police said all the customers were "cooperated."

The second bandit scooped all the money from the cash register. Barry and the seven patrons were admonished to refrain from moving for at least 10 minutes.

As the bandits left the building, they stopped long enough to peer in the window almost surely to see if their warning was being heeded.

Janesville pair may be responsible for one or more of three holdups and an attempted robbery in Madison and Dane county in less than a month, police agreed Monday night.

Two bandits held up the Badger Liquor Shop, 492 State st., escaping with $1,600 in cash, Oct. 31.

On a Friday, the 13th, an attempted robbery, Mrs. Alfred Harwell successfully beat off an assailant in her grocery store at 814 E. Johnson st. after the man struck her when she failed to hand over the store money.

Ben G. Reink, operator of Ben's grocery, 321 E. Commercial ave., obeyed a robber's command Thursday to forget about the holdup, lest his family be injured in retaliation. The thief got away with $125.

A holdup-man got away with $170 from the Kleinberg Pharmacy, 714 S. Park st., late Saturday night.

No trace of any of the robbers has been uncovered.

Toronto Paper Says Pearson Faces 'Smear'

TORONTO (UP)—The Toronto Star said Monday an American congressional committee is trying to use the Igor Gouzenko case as a "bulldozing" tactic to smear Lester B. Pearson, Canadian external affairs minister.

The newspaper said the United States request that Gouzenko be questioned about Soviet spy activities amounted to "blackmail."

Pearson may be named in a few days as one of three Canadians accused of supplying information to a Communist spy ring during the last part of World War II, the Star said.

The accusation was made, it said, at a secret session of the House of Representatives Committee in August, 1951.

The Star said the accusations might be brought into the open by the Senate Internal Security committee.

Pearson, in a speech to the English Speaking Union in New York City Monday night, departed from his prepared text to say that it was a pleasure to be out of the "lower levels" of politics for an evening where no one would ask him "when did you cease being a Communist?"

The audience applauded his statement.

"The occasional traitor in any of our countries," he said, cannot do "nearly as much harm to our security as suspicion and lack of trust."

He said the Communist conspiracy must be destroyed "without descending to Communist tactics and procedures" and pleaded for cooperation and trust between English speaking people.

It should be possible, Pearson said, for allies whose security depends on each other "to accept each other's assurances of sincerity and good faith in dealing with these questions of security and espionage."

The U. S. government has requested the Canadian government twice to let congressional question Gouzenko, a former clerk in the Soviet embassy in Ottawa. Gouzenko fled the embassy and provided the information that led to the arrest and execution of atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and the conviction of Klaus Fuchs and Alan Nunn May.

The United States wants further information from Gouzenko as the result of the current Harry Dexter White case.

A Canadian government turned down the first American request. It will reply to the second request today or Wednesday.

In Ottawa, David A. Croft, liberal member of Parliament, called on President Eisenhower to repudiate what Croft called a "smear" campaign by "powerful political interests in the United States."

Croft told Parliament this group was trying to picture "Mr. Pearson and Canada as pink-headed left-wingers, in a soft spot towards Communism."

Air Crashes Cost 10 Lives in 3 Years

Air disasters, like the crash of the F-80 Truax-based jet plane Monday afternoon in the swamp along the Lake Wingra shorelines, have claimed 10 lives, in or near Madison, including four civilians in the past three years, a review of State Journal files showed Monday night.

Because of their sensational character, plane crashes are vividly remembered, making them seem more frequent.

GOP Will Honor Wayne J. Hood at Nov. 30 Event

Wayne J. Hood, La Crosse state Republican chairman for more than three years, will be honored by party leaders from Wisconsin in a testimonial banquet in La Crosse next Monday night.

HOOD

Hood, state GOP chairman from early 1950 to last July, is a close friend of Summerfield, having worked as his executive assistant at the national GOP headquarters during the 1952 presidential campaign. Summerfield then was national Republican committee chairman.

The La Crosse man directed the state organization in two of its most successful campaigns. He was county and third district GOP chairman before taking the state office, succeeding Harvey V. Higley, Marinette, who now is head of the Veterans Administration.

Summerfield will be the first ranking administration leader to come to Wisconsin since Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson spoke at the national plowing matches in Eau Claire county in September.

Explorer Predicts 2,000 MPH Planes

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (UP)—Col. Berni Balchen, polar explorer and aviator, predicted Monday that by 1960 all commercial aviation will be jet-powered, and that planes will travel up to 2,000 miles an hour.

Balchen, who was associated with Adm. Richard E. Byrd in polar exploration and was connected with the construction of the giant American air base at Greenland, addressed a student audience at Carleton College here.

He said the Arctic Circle will become increasingly important strategically to the United States. He also said that now the problems of cold are being conquered, commercial aircraft will gradually start using the circle route.

7 More Madison Churches to Hold Special Services

Most Madison churches will hold special Thanksgiving Day services Wednesday night or Thursday.

In addition to services announced in Sunday's Wisconsin State Journal, the following observances are scheduled:

Bethany Evangelical Free Church, 8 p. m. Thursday; Lutheran Church of the Holy Cross, 9:30 a. m. Thursday; First Baptist Church, 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Public sentiment was most aroused when a C-47 transport plane crossing Highway 51 for a landing on a new runway, struck an auto, killing the car's four occupants.

The date was Sept. 21, 1952. Air Force officials abandoned use of the runway except under emergency conditions and signs warning motorists of low flying planes were erected on the highway.

It was 12 days before that when a propeller-driven fighter plane crashed in flames on the field and its six machine guns sprayed the city's east side with 50 caliber slugs.

Nine houses were struck by bullets and two persons suffered minor injuries from the ricocheting slugs.

On Feb. 5, 1952 and F-80 Shooting Star pilot was killed when his plane crashed on a farm near Cottage Grove.

The year 1951 was marked by two crashes in which both pilots escaped with injuries. A National Guard propeller-driven plane overshot a runway and overturned and the same type of plane, attempting a landing at Truax crashed in a cornfield near Highway 51.

Student Senate of U.W. to Honor President Fred

University of Wisconsin President E. B. Fred will be honored by being made an ex-officio member of the university's Student Senate at the group's meeting tonight in the Memorial Union.

Fred has accepted an invitation to speak to the senate, the governing body of the Wisconsin students, concerning how effective a voice for students the senate can be and how the senate can assist the university administration in establishing and administering student policy.

Station (Dum) Rice, Delmar N. Y., president of the Student Senate, announced that after his talk President Fred will be nominated as an ex-officio member of the group.

Also to come before the sen-

At present, two members are elected to the senate from each of four geographical districts. The proposal would direct the district representatives to create committees to act as contacts to students in the districts.

The senate also will be presented with a proposal to sponsor a "high school day" at which delegates from all Wisconsin high schools will be invited to the campus.

The purpose of the program would be to "acquaint outstanding high school students with the University of Wisconsin and with the student government at the university."

WASHINGTON (UP) — Ranking government officials joined a glittering cast of stage and screen stars Monday night to present President Eisenhower with the 1953 "democratic legacy" award of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

The silver medallion honored Mr. Eisenhower for "a life devoted to the furtherance of freedom."

The presentation, seen and heard over nationwide television and radio hookups, marked the climax of the league's 40th annual celebration. B'nai B'rith is a 110-year-old Jewish service organization.

The hour-long program featured a special program staged by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. Entitled "Dinner with the President," it featured appearances by Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz, Ethel Merman, Helen Hayes, Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer, Jane Froman, and Jackie Robinson.

In presenting the medal, league chairman Henry Edward Schultz of New York told the President that the league wished to honor him "for your leadership in the great crusade to bring about the elimination of Nazi tyranny... for your vigorous campaign to eliminate racial segregation in the armed forces."

"But most of all, we honor you for your continuing leadership of the free world."

starve him out, with a Natural Gas Incinerator!

Rats and mice aren't very nice, it's true. And they're worse in your own back yard. But, they're great believers in the easy life... and what could be easier than the daily "free lunch" they get from an antique garbage can?

You can stop this family-health menace, today. Junk your old garbage can and ask your gas company or appliance dealer to install a clean, modern natural gas incinerator. There'll be no more "social security" for vermin. No more breeding, buzzing, biting summertime flies. No more chilling, cold-catching winter-time trips to a snow-topped garbage can. Instead, the steady, searing heat of a natural gas flame will quickly dry garbage and trash, then powder it to a clean, white, nutritive ash that you can use to enrich the flowers you'll grow in the very spot where your worst back-yard eyesore used to be.

An incinerator costs little to buy, pennies to use. For your health's sake, see your appliance dealer or Gas Company, today.

Two More Truax Fliers Lost

Lake Superior Hides Jet's Fate During Storm

Men Presumed Dead; Cause of City Crash May Stay Mysterious

By JUNE DIECKMANN
(State Journal Staff Writer)

Two more Truax Field fliers were presumed dead Tuesday night after their F-89C Scorpion jet crashed in Lake Superior Monday night just five hours subsequent to another F-89C crash which killed two Truax officers here.

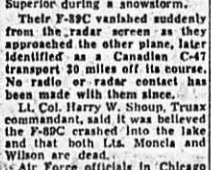

The victims of the Lake Superior accident were the pilot, First Lt. Felix E. Moncla Jr., 27, of 15 Sherman terrace, a native of Moreauville, La., and the radar observer, Second Lt. Robert L. Wilson, 22, from Ponca City, Okla., whose Madison home was at 301 Huntington st.

The two lieutenants disappeared while on a mission from Kinross air base, Sault Ste.

Maric, Mich., to investigate an unidentified plane over Lake Superior during a snowstorm. Their F-89C vanished suddenly from the radar screen as they approached the other plane, later identified as a Canadian C-47 transport 30 miles off its course. No radio or radar contact has been made with them since.

LT. Col. Harry W. Shoup, Truax commandant, said it was believed the F-89C crashed into the lake and that both Lt. Moncla and Wilson are dead.

Air Force officials in Chicago said Tuesday night the F-89C jets will not be grounded despite the two crashes of planes from Truax.

Crash Here Unknown

The exact cause of the crash Monday afternoon on the Lake Wingra shore here probably will not be determined because salvage crews are not able to retrieve parts of the plane that were blasted deep into the lake bed and marred by the plane's explosion, Col. Shoup said.

Killed in the Madison crash were the pilot, First Lt. John W. Schmidt, 28, a native of Del Rio, Tex., who lived at 10 Sherman terrace, and the radar operator, Capt. Glen E. Collins, 30, of 24 Craig ave., a native of Indianapolis, Ind.

Mrs. Schmidt, an expectant mother, was consoled by her neighbor, Mrs. Moncla, Monday night while neither of them knew

Pilots Here Avoid Public Risks, Chief Says

Officer Believes Victims Crashed to Avoid Homes

The Air Force's jet pilots at Truax Field, numbering about 150, conscientiously maneuver their planes away from Madison and suburbs to avoid endangering the lives of residents, Lt. Col. Harry W. Shoup, Truax commandant, told The Wisconsin State Journal Tuesday night.

"Every one of our pilots is concerned about the terrific hazard in having a city under our planes, and everyone of them is thoroughly briefed in every method possible to avoid the city in landings and take-offs," he said.

"Sometimes I get the shakes watching our boys take off and turn back too quickly, just to avoid the city," he declared.

Col. Shoup explained the pilots' precautionary flying after receiving reports that some city residents were concerned about the F-89C jets crashing Monday afternoon only a few blocks from homes in the arboretum. Killed in the crash were Lt. John W. Schmidt, 28, and Capt. Glen E. Collins, 30, both fathers of families.

"From witnesses' stories and our investigations, it is my firm belief that these two boys purposely stayed with their plane to prevent it from crashing into a residential section," Col. Shoup said.

"They (Lt. Schmidt and Capt. Collins) were one of our finest pilots and before the crash they could have known them. They were calm, cool, and collected—good experienced officers who I know considered their responsibility to the city below the crippled plane as well as to their own families," he said.

"We're really serious about our mission," Col. Shoup said, explaining the constant alert kept by the 43rd fighter-interceptor squadron and ground crew and before the few self-declared pilots who fly, holidays, or on circumstances.

"And it hurts when people think we take it lightly.

"We don't have a bunch of kids out here flying. They're experienced pilots with wives, who worry, and families. They're not about to take chances, with their lives or anybody's else's," he stressed.

Truax officials have not received many complaints from Madison residents about the noise or danger of jets flying over the city, the colonel said.

"I'm thankful most people understand that the weather, the calculated risk is very little to sacrifice for the protection which will be ready when they need it," he said.

"The pilots here are self-persevering, are too quick to complain and criticize. I hope they remember that those boys flying over Madison now are going to be the ones knocking down enemy planes when the time comes," Col. Shoup said.

Rally Contributes over $1,000 to 'Keep Jeffrey in Albany'

Amount in Pledges Given by more than 200 persons who packed the village hall in this community of 839.

By LEW ROBERTS
(State Journal Staff Writer)

ALBANY — Determined to help Mrs. Dorothy Tschudy gain custody of a 2-year-old boy she cared for more than a year, Albany residents dug into their pockets for more than $1,000 Tuesday night to start a Keep Jeffrey in Albany fund.

The sum represents $523 in cash, and a slightly greater amount in pledges given by more than 200 persons who packed the village hall in this community of 839.

A committee of six was named to meet at 2:30 p.m. today with Oscar Toebas, Madison attorney and former president of the Wisconsin Bar Association.

Robert Atkinson, Albany farmer and milk hauler, told the community meeting that Toebas has agreed to represent the citizens here who are fighting a decision of the Wisconsin Department of Public Welfare.

Atkinson was one of more than 100 Albany residents who drove to Monroe Monday to ask Green County Judge Harold J. Lamborn to reconsider his ruling that the child is still a ward of the state.

Mrs. Dorothy Tschudy and her husband, Verne, took the baby in March, 1952. Last April, Mr. Tschudy died and the state Welfare Department decided that a child placed for possible adoption should have two parents.

Children placed by the department do not become legally adopted by the foster parents until formal papers are prepared two or three months after a one-year probationary period.

The 28-year-old widow was not at the village meeting Tuesday night. She collapsed from shock last Friday after she turned the child over to the Welfare Department in the state capitol. Since then she has been hospitalized in Monroe.

"She's living on the hope that she'll get her baby back," Mrs. John Argue, mother of Mrs. Tschudy, tearfully told the meeting Tuesday night. "I don't want to think of what might happen to her if she doesn't get it back."

At the request of the Rev. Kyle Miller, Albany Baptist church pastor, Mrs. Argue related what occurred at the capitol last Friday when Mrs. Tschudy turned over the child in accordance with Lamborn's ruling.

"It was about dusk and Dorothy and I carried Jeffrey up to the second floor in the south wing of the capitol building where Mr. Trumburg's office is," Mrs. Argue said.

John W. Trumburg is director of the Welfare Department. He has since been in Madison on a year's leave of absence as social security commissioner in Washington.

No Snow Expected Along the Road to Grandpa's House

Madison and area residents planning a drive "home" for Thanksgiving day probably won't have to worry about bad road conditions and there's a good chance there'll be sunshine too, the Truax Field weatherman said Tuesday night.

Update today more snow was in prospect, but mostly in flurries. It not only will bring a white Thanksgiving but also is cheering news for deer hunters. It won't be deep enough to slow down a hunter but will be fine for tracking.

The forecast for today called for lots of clouds with a high of 38. Thursday's outlook is for partly cloudy skies with the same temperatures.

There is no precipitation expected in the southern part of the state either today or Thanksgiving.

There was 2 inches of snow on the ground at Superior, 2 1/2 where in the northwoods rain and snow fell Tuesday.

Raps Republicans, Too, in Reply to Ex-President

NEW YORK (UP)— Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy charged Tuesday night that former President Harry S. Truman is a "defeated and discredited" politician who has put his party above the interest of the country, "regardless of how much the country is damaged thereby."

The Wisconsin Republican made a half-hour nationwide radio and television speech in reply to Mr. Truman's speech last week charging the Eisenhower administration had "fully embraced . . . Carthyism."

McCarthy, who demanded and was granted equal TV and radio facilities, devoted most of his speech to an attack on Mr. Truman, but he did not spare some of his fellow Republicans or President Eisenhower.

Criticizes GOP

In his speech, made in a small CBS television studio with no audience present, McCarthy:

ONE. Criticized the Eisenhower administration for not doing all it could to stop Communism and disagreed with Mr. Eisenhower's "Communist" in general.

TWO. Called for a halting of "blood money" to any American who traded with the Red nations and for a blockade of Red China.

THREE. Said he was prepared to force the American people to judge "McCarthyism" at the ballot box.

"Completely Untruthful"

McCarthy charged Mr. Truman "made a completely untruthful attack upon me" in his speech Nov. 18 in which he discussed the Harry Dexter White case.

"As an individual, he (Mr. Truman) is of no more importance than any other individual who has been repudiated by an overwhelming vote of the American people," McCarthy said.

Truman, however, became an issue in the White case, embraced by the Democrat party.

"Then McCarthy gave his definition of 'Trumanism,'" he said, "and perhaps best defined as the placing of your political party above the interest of the country, regardless of how much the country is damaged thereby. It is the theory that no matter how great the wrong, it is right if it helps 'Trumanism.'"

Trumanism in effect says to the head of a household that if you catch a criminal looking your wife, safe, and attacking your wife, do not dare turn the spotlight on him, or get rough with him, or call for the police, because if you do, the criminal will have you arrested for disturbing the peace."

Mr. Truman, in his speech, replied to what he called "false" and "phony" charges that he produced a "phony" party.

Radar Spy Ring, Rosenberg Linked

McCarthy Hits Truman Policy

Greenglass Hints Here's Type of Plane Involved in Crashes

Still Exists

McCarthy Reads Worn Deposition

United Press, Associated Press

NEW YORK — Imprisoned spy David Greenglass, in a deposition, Tuesday named Rosenberg as mastermind of Russian radar spy ring that still exists.

Joseph R. McCarthy (R) read the deposition into the record of his Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee at a hearing that has developed a "put up or shut up" test of radar spy charges.

Greenglass said of his former-in-law, Rosenberg, "The spy he helped send to the electric chair."

McCarthy learned that the Rosenbergs took and obtained secrets of the Army Signal Corps and admitted them to Russia. During the recent interview at Lehigh, Pa., federal penitentiary where he is serving 15 years, Greenglass was asked: "Where did the operation of the radar spy ring, which had as its purpose the obtaining of radar secrets for Russia, stop?"

"As far as I know," was Greenglass' reply, "these operations stopped and could very likely be continuing to this day."

On Oct. 15, during private subcommittee hearings, McCarthy produced evidence that Rosenberg's atomic spy ring also dealt in radar secrets.

"Strong Possibility" Greenglass added there was a "strong possibility" the same ring still active at Ft. Monmouth—N. headquarters of the Signal Corps top secret radar defense program.

Greenglass's worn deposition indicated to support McCarthy's original statements.

The Army, in its own investigation of Ft. Monmouth, said it had no evidence of current spy infiltration into radar defenses against an attack.

McCarthy then called on Greenglass for some proof of his claim of "extremely dangerous espionage" at Ft. Monmouth.

McCarthy's answer was a pub-nearing, which began Tuesday. He indicated, "he will offer evidence and let the American people decide whether he exaggerated the Ft. Monmouth situation."

Witness Questioned — Another witness Tuesday was an electronics engineer who reportedly worked for the Signal Corps and who refused to say whether he engaged in espionage in the last 30 days.

Engineer Joseph Levitsky, after giving the name of Rosenberg as a reference when he worked for the Signal Corps job at Ft. Monmouth in 1943 but refused to say if he ever was a Communist or a spy or ever recruited espionage agents, Levitsky, who lives in Riverdale, N. J., and worked at Ft. Monmouth until last February, reportedly no security charge had been brought against him by the Signal Corps "or anyone else." He said he refused to answer most subcommittee questions because he does not believe the group is engaged in a legislative inquiry.

Jeffrey said he wanted to get down," she continued. "Mr. Trumburg nodded to the case workers and said, 'Well, if you want the child there he is.'"

"This was just too much for Dorothy and me," Mrs. Argue said, choked with emotion. "The lady who picked him up tried to kiss him and asked if he wanted to go for a ride. Then the lady ran down the stairs with him."

"And that's the last we saw of Jeffrey—he was looking at us over her shoulder. And the last we heard he was still crying. 'Mother.'"

Mrs. Argue expressed thanks for the efforts of her daughter's neighbors in Mrs. Tschudy's behalf.

"I have never seen a group of people like you," she told the crowd. "We will always appreciate it whether we get Jeffrey back or not."

The child is now in another home. The Welfare Department did not identify its location.

The committee of six empowered to engage an attorney to seek an appeal to the Supreme Court or request a rehearing in Green County Court includes Mrs. Cecil McCreedy, Robert Atkinson, the Rev. A. D. Willett, Mrs. Herby Henriksen, Elmer Braun, and Mrs. Ann Hlavachek.

Mrs. Donald H. Partridge was elected finance chairman and Mrs. Truman E. Sharer, treasurer.

The Keep Jeffrey in Albany Fund will receive contributions at Box No. 285, Albany.

Citizens at the meeting reported that they have received telephone calls from several communities in the state indicating persons wished to give money for legal help for Mrs. Tschudy.

The group voted that any surplus money will be given to Mrs. Tschudy for the child's care. In the event she gains custody of the boy and for her own rehabilitation in the event she does not.

that at the same time Lt. Moncla's plane had crashed in Lake Superior 400 miles away.

Lt. Moncla and Wilson were members of part of the Truax 433rd fighter-interceptor squadron which is temporarily stationed at Kinross field while squadron members from there are taking gunnery re-training at Yuma, Ariz.

During Snowstorm — At 5:22 p. m. Monday, Lt. Moncla and Wilson were dispatched during a snowstorm to investigate the unidentified plane some 100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

As the radar screen revealed they were approaching the other plane, they disappeared.

Col. Shoup said he believed Lt. Moncla and Wilson must have suddenly overtaken the slower transport plane and "peeled off" to avoid a collision. The jet perhaps stalled and went into a spin, crashing into the lake, he said.

No Distress Signal — No distress signal was radiated by the lieutenants.

Air-sea rescue crews from both Canadian and U. S. Air Force and Coast Guard bases continued their search for the fliers Tuesday night, but were hampered by snow and poor visibility.

The nearest land to where the Truax jet is believed to have crashed is Keweenaw Point, Mich., 70 miles to the southwest, and the Canadian shore line 40 miles to the northeast.

Kinross field officials reported that the jet had two hours of fuel when it took off Monday night. The plane was equipped with two rubber rafts and each of the lieutenants wore a life jacket.

Col. Shoup said that even if Lt. Moncla and Wilson were able to inflate and board the rafts, it is not believed they could have survived the night on the frigid, snow-swept Lake Superior.

Lt. Moncla came to Truax Field in July, 1952. He and Mrs. Moncla have a daughter, Sharon,

"My case was loving not wisely," she wrote, "but too well."

The letter was written several days ago, authorities said. Hall also wrote one to Robert C. Greenlease, millionaire father of the murdered victim for whose kidnap and death Hall and Mrs. Heady will die in the Missouri gas chamber Dec. 18.

"I doubt if this letter will do much good but there isn't anything that we could do or say that would atone for our mistake," Mrs. Heady wrote. "I do hope it helps a little."

The 41-year-old once respected St. Joseph, Mo., woman turned alcoholic said whisky was her downfall.

"I think anyone will find that if he drinks from one to two fifths of whisky a day for a year and half that your brain doesn't function properly," Mrs. Heady's letter said. "Since I have been in jail is the first time I've been able to reason clearly for some time."

She said she would have been "very, very happy" living with Hall in her house, as she did from May until the kidnaping, "but he had been used to more money. I wanted so much for him to be happy."

"I would give anything if I could go back to that Sunday in September and erase everything that has happened since," Mrs. Heady wrote. "It all seems like a nightmare."

Meantime, at Jefferson City where the execution of Hall and Mrs. Heady will take place, preparations were being considered for a visit with Hall by St. Louis Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell.

Word was received by penitentiary authorities Tuesday that a permission for the visit had been granted, presumably to interrogate Hall at least once more in an effort to glean all he knows about the record $600,000 ransom he collected.

Simonson estimated that this plan, which duplicated the Elder plan as far as police and fire ranges were concerned, would have saved the city $3,994.

The first two civil service ranges, he said, include many young, unmarried and inexperienced employees who do not need the $7.50 increase as badly as those in higher ranges.

Lyle Schaller, president of the Council of City Employees, indicated that the employees favored the Elder plan, while the Simonson proposal, he declared, was "inconsistent with the principle" on which the employees based their bargaining.

Only Aids, Brown, Garner, and Metzner joined Simonson in supporting his plan.

Pieces of Eight Finder Has Press at Sixes, Sevens

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., (UP) — A 40-year-old gold hunter who said he found a fortune in doubloons and pieces of eight in a Spanish chest in the Suwanee river was as hard to pin down Tuesday as Captain Kidd himself.

The claimant, William F. Sneed, Jr., of Lakeland, Fla., had a fistful of doubloons, all right. They had a goldish glint and seemed authentic enough, but they did not look like they had lain in the salty mouth of the river for 150 years.

Sneed also had a "treasure map." It showed the southeastern states and had X's marking such spots as "La Flite's Gold" and "Gasparilla's Treasure." Somehow it looked like maps available at filling stations.

But Sneed, a well-dressed, prosperous-looking man who runs a hotel when he isn't looking at his coin collection or seeking gold, insisted he has really found a chest of gold. He said it was "under lock and key" somewhere in Lakeland.

He said he located the chest in 12 1/2 feet of water in the Suwannee close to the mouth of the fabled river on the Florida gulf coast. He used "electronic devices" to find it, he said, and his maps showed another chest of gold in the same area. McCarthy said Truman's election to the presidency was "loved by Wheeler's men, although he had missed as a Communist."

learned that the Rosenberg took and obtained secrets the Army Signal Corps and admitted them to Russia. During the recent interview at Schuylburg Pa., federal penitentiary where he is serving 15 years, the spy ring was asked:

"When did the operation of the spy ring, which had as its purpose the obtaining of radar secrets for Russia, stop?"

"As far as I know," was Greenlee's reply; "these operations were stopped and could very likely be continuing to this day."

On Oct. 15, during private subcommittee hearings, McCarthy produced evidence that Rosenberg's atomic spy ring also dealt in atomic secrets.

"Strong Possibility" added there was a "strong possibility" the same ring still active at Ft. Monmouth, headquarters of the Signal Corps top secret radar defense program.

Greenlee's sworn deposition intended to support McCarthy's original statements. He said the Army, in its own investigation of Ft. Monmouth, said it had no evidence of current spy into radar defenses against atomic attack.

McCarthy then called on McCarthy to offer some proof of his claim of an extremely dangerous espionage ring at Ft. Monmouth.

McCarthy's answer was a pub-hearing, which began Tuesday. He indicated, he will offer evidence and let the American people decide whether he exaggerated the Ft. Monmouth situation.

Witness Questioned another witness Tuesday was an electronics engineer who reportedly worked for the Signal Corps and who refused to say whether he engaged in espionage during the last 30 days.

The engineer, Joseph Levitsky, admitted giving the name of Rosenberg as a reference when he applied for the Signal Corps job at Ft. Monmouth in 1943 but refused to say if he ever was a Communist or a spy or ever did to recruit espionage agents.

Levitsky, who lives in Riverdale, N. J., and worked at Ft. Monmouth until last February, reportedly never securely charged been brought against him by the Signal Corps "for anyone else." He said he refused to answer most subcommittee questions because he does not believe the group is engaged in a proper legislative inquiry.

Prisoner, 16, Runs Away from Deputy, Escapes Courthouse

A county-wide police radio alert broadcast late Tuesday afternoon after a 16-year-old Madison County boy broke away from his captor at the courthouse and fled down a flight of stairs to freedom.

Chief Deputy Paul Lappley was called the youth to the county jail after he pleaded guilty in Superior Court to stealing a battery charger worth $125.

When Lappley paused in the corridor to speak to a man, the youth vaulted a stair railing and slid down two flights of stairs and out the back door, according to Under Sheriff Vernon G. Leslie.

The youth, undisturbed, Lappley, and an officer ran to the jail to have a broadcast of the escape attempt.

City and county police searched unsuccessfully for the youth from the time of his escape about 4:15 p. m. He had been wanted to the custody of the sheriff to await sentencing.

The battery charger was stolen from a car used on University Street Monday afternoon.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gordon E. Weaver said the youth has been arrested eight previous times this year for thefts, sneaking into theaters without paying, and participating with other youths in robbing and robbing a man in a hospital park. He has been under

"This was just too much for Dorothy and me," Mrs. Argue said, choked with emotion. "The lady who picked him up tried to kiss him and asked if he wanted to go for a ride. Then the lady ran down the stairs with him."

"And that's the last we saw of Jeffrey—he was looking at us over her shoulder. And the last we heard he was still crying. 'Mother.'"

Mrs. Argue expressed thanks for the efforts of her daughter's neighbors in Mrs. Tschudy's behalf.

"I have never seen a group of people like you," she told the crowd. "We will always appreciate it whether we get Jeffrey back or not."

The child is now in another home. The Welfare Department did not identify its location.

The committee of six empowered to engage an attorney to seek an appeal to the Supreme Court or request a rehearing in Green County Court includes Mrs. Cecil McCree, Robert Atkinson, the Rev. A. D. Willett, Mrs. Herby Henriksen, Elmer Braun, and Mrs. Ann Hlavacek.

Mrs. Donald H. Partridge was elected finance chairman and Mrs. Truman E. Sharer, treasurer.

The Keep Jeffrey in Albany Fund will receive contributions at Box No. 285, Albany.

Citizens at the meeting reported that they have received telephone calls from several communities in the state indicating persons wished to give money for legal help for Mrs. Tschudy.

The group voted that any surplus money will be given to Mrs. Tschudy for the child's care in the event she gains custody of the boy and for her own rehabilitation in the event she does not.

Eugene Doyle, Albany fire chief, made the first donation on behalf of his department.

"Vernon Tschudy was one of the finest firemen we had," Doyle told the group. "And the fire department will start the ball rolling with a contribution of $25."

The largest contribution Tuesday night came from John Argue, Mrs. Tschudy's stepfather, for $100.

An NBC television production crew took movies of the meeting to be shown this morning on the Dave Garraway show, originating in Chicago.

Mrs. Argue said State Sen. Melvin J. Olson (R-South Wayne) has pledged his support of the Albany partisans.

WASHINGTON (AP)—John W. Tramburg of Wisconsin was sworn in Tuesday as commissioner of social security.

President Eisenhower appointed him to the position two weeks ago.

Tramburg is the first to hold the job with the new title. His duties will correspond with those formerly performed by Arthur D. Altmyer, Madison, Wis., who was commissioner for social security until the job was abolished in a reorganization last spring.

Tramburg was director of the Wisconsin Department of Public Welfare from March, 1950, until he received his present appointment.

that at the same time Lt. Moncla's plane had crashed in Lake Superior 400 miles away.

Lts. Moncla and Wilson were members of part of the Truax 433rd fighter-interceptor squadron which is temporarily stationed at Kinross field while squadron members from there are taking gunnery re-training at Yuma, Ariz.

During Snowstorm At 5:22 p. m. Monday, Lts. Moncla and Wilson were dispatched during a snowstorm to investigate the unidentified plane some 100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

As the radar screen revealed they were approaching the other plane, they disappeared.

Col. Shoup said he believed Lts. Moncla and Wilson must have suddenly overtaken the slower transport plane and "peeled off" to avoid a collision. The jet perhaps stalled and went into a spin, crashing into the lake, he said.

No Distress Signal No distress signal was radioed by the lieutenants.

Air-sea rescue crews from both Canadian and U. S. Air Force and Coast Guard bases continued their search for the fliers Tuesday night, but were hampered by snow and poor visibility.

The nearest land to where the Truax jet is believed to have crashed is Keweenaw Point, Mich., 70 miles to the southwest, and the Canadian shore line 40 miles to the northeast.

Kinross field officials reported that the jet had two hours of fuel when it took off Monday night. The plane was equipped with two rubber rafts and each of the lieutenants wore a life jacket.

Col. Shoup said that even if Lts. Moncla and Wilson were able to inflate and board the rafts, it is not believed they could have survived the night on the frigid, snow-swept Lake Superior.

Lt. Moncla came to Truax Field in July, 1952. He and Mrs. Moncla have a daughter, Sharon, five months, and a son, David, 20 months. Lt. Wilson, who is unmarried, was assigned to Truax last June.

Youth, 18, Held Here in Bank Robbery Case

Bernard Kinear, 18, of Exeland, waived preliminary hearing on bank robbery charges before U. S. Commissioner J. J. McManamy here Tuesday afternoon and was sent to Dane county jail in default of $20,000 bond.

Kinear, according to U. S. Atty. Frank Nikolay, has admitted he was one of two bandits who held up the Curtiss State bank, in Clark county, on Nov. 17, and obtained $18,500 in loot, which has been recovered, all except $236 from an abandoned farm house near Owen.

He is said to have purchased the holdup car, a 1942 model on Nov. 10, from a Madison used car lot for $50, and was driving the old blue car when he was arrested at Ladysmith a few days after the holdup. His alleged partner in the holdup, Louis Lash, 26, of Cudahy, was arrested in Cudahy, and is in a Milwaukee jail.

Nikolay said Tuesday that Judge Patrick T. Stone will appoint an attorney to defend Kinear.

Stoughton, Sun Prairie Break-Ins Investigated

A break-in was reported in Stoughton late Tuesday night, and sheriff's deputies were investigating another reported in Sun Prairie early today.

Taken were a waffle iron valued at $30, several clocks including an electric model ripped off the wall, a child's jacket, a $10 bill, and some small change.

Deputies Ben Denison and John Zeller said the home was thoroughly ransacked, but other valuables in the building were ignored.

UN Also Has Dispute Over Allied PW Talks

PANMUNJOM, Wednesday (AP)—The United Nations (UN) Command disclosed Tuesday it also is locked in dispute with the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission over plans for "come home" talks with Allied prisoners.

With only 24 explanation days remaining, the UN Command has not yet begun its interviews and has been sparring with the five-nation commission since Nov. 11.

The nub of the quarrel is this: the UN wants to use 15 explainers while the commission says it is entitled only to five. There are 22 Americans, one Briton, and 328 South Koreans to be interviewed.

The UN Command has indicated it would like to get the explanations rolling by early December.

The Communists in their own dispute with the commission now have refused to hold interviews for nine days. It is unlikely they ever will resume them.

The Reds were rejected by 97 per cent of 2,431 captives interviewed. About 20,000 North Koreans and Chinese prisoners remain in Panmunjom's stockades.

Dean Sees Solution to Deadlock on Talks

PANMUNJOM, Wednesday (AP)—Dean Acheson, U. S. Secretary of State, said today he believed "some procedure will be worked out" for seating Russia in the Korean peace conference as a full-participant and not as a neutral.

Dean told newsmen after a record three-hour and 45-minute meeting that "some method must be worked out for Russia to attend as a full participant."

As the city has grown, so has the work of the Empty Stocking Club and so has its need for your help.

As you give thanks today for the blessings of the year, the Empty Stocking Club asks once more that you answer the call of Christmas.

J. J. Kelly, special agent in charge of the Boston FBI office, said agents became suspicious of the O'Briens after the family began spending freely recently.

However, he would not disclose what led agents to the O'Briens in the first place.

Although O'Brien was out of work, Kelly said, he and his family had moved last January from a third floor tenement in Boston's Dorchester section to a $25,000 home he bought in suburban Wollaston.

Home Searched
Kelly said agents, armed with warrants, searched the O'Brien home when they arrested the convict and his wife. He refused to say if the loot was found there.

The younger O'Brien was seized on the MIT campus in Cambridge, where he lived.

The O'Briens have two other sons, Thomas, 7, a first grader at a Wollaston grammar school, and John, 5.

Neighbors in the residential area of Wollaston described the O'Briens as quiet persons "who kept pretty much to themselves."

Less than two months ago, it was reported, O'Brien started driving a new Pontiac sedan.

O'Brien was charged with actually taking part in the theft. His wife and son were charged with receiving stolen money.

The theft occurred in broad daylight Mar. 25, 1952, when three U. S. Trucking Corp. guards left their armored car unattended in busy Danvers Square while they slipped coffee in a nearby drug store.

Youth Who Escaped Jail Gives Self Up

A 16-year-old Madison youth who ran away from a deputy sheriff Tuesday afternoon gave himself up to county authorities about 5:45 p. m. Wednesday.

The youth had been sent to jail to await sentencing after he pleaded guilty in Superior Court to stealing a battery charger. On his way to jail he bolted and ran down two flights of stairs to freedom.

Best Gift That's S

What gift that would give you more days in the sun? The answer is a year's worth of sunshine. The Wisconsin National Shopping Center is a year's worth of sunshine.

With attention, a year's worth of sunshine is provided. Journal's comment, 6-31, your order.

Ties counts as a "snowfall anything that is good enough to track a cat or a rabbit."

If it snows in the morning, then stops and starts again, that's two snowfalls in Ties' books.

A retired chief of police, Ties once let a nationwide TV audience in on his Indian secret. He takes the date of the first snowfall and adds to that the number of days the new moon is old. This year, that would be 25 (the date) plus 19 (the age of the moon).

Ties has been predicting for more than 20 years and the snowfalls in that time have been as many as 48 and as few as 20.

He added, as more free advice, that we will have a late spring in 1954.

N. J. Sabotage at Gas Plant Perils 12,000

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Some 12,000 sleeping residents of two New Jersey towns were endangered by gas early Thursday because of "sabotage" at installations of the strike bound Public Service Electric and Gas Co. Gas valves feeding Manville, a town of 9,000 in central Jersey, and a section of Barrington in the southern part of the state were turned off during the night in what police labeled acts of sabotage.

Police, firemen, and civilian defense workers in both localities were mobilized and warned residents of the danger by telephone, sump-truck and a door-to-door canvass.

Manville Police Chief John J. Jasinski said a valve was deliberately turned off there at 11 p. m. Wednesday night and a gas alert lasted for four hours.

"It definitely was sabotage," he said.

Police Chief Delbert Boster of Barrington said someone opened a high pressure valve there around 4 a. m., shutting off gas to 3,000 households.

Boster said it "definitely was deliberate and intentional." Jasinski said danger existed in stove pilot lights since they went out when pressure dropped but still emitted gas.

Public service was hit by a wage walkout of 1,800 distribution and maintenance men last Friday. All but a few of the firm's installations in the state are affected.

The workers belong to Local 274, AFL Utility Construction and Gas Appliance Workers. Incidents of vandalism and sabotage, including slashed tires and cut telephone cables, were reported the past few days at company plants in Englewood, New Brunswick, West Orange, and Paterson.

Tax Investigator Quits Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP)—Garland H. Williams, until recently the government's top tax frauds investigator, quit that post when his own income tax returns showed "discrepancies," officials said Thursday.

James C. Rivers, information officer for the Internal Revenue Service, said the "discrepancies" were not considered serious enough to warrant court action.

But Williams resigned as head of the service's tax fraud investigation division in "3-August when the matter was called to his attention by Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews, Rivers said.

He added that Andrews felt the irregularities were "not consistent with Williams' important job as an enforcement officer" and that Williams should have maintained a flawless record.

Williams, a long-time Treasury employe, took the revenue service job last Jan. 1, shortly before the new administration took office. Rivers said the "discrepancies" took place before that time.

Neither Williams nor Andrews could be reached for comment.

Laniel Reported Lacking Support

PARIS (UP)—French parliamentary sources said Thursday that Premier Joseph Laniel must gain greater support than now pledged him by National Assembly members to win a vote of confidence today and hold his government together.

The sources said that as of now Laniel can count on only 208 of the Assembly's 627 deputies to support him in his demand for a vote of confidence on his policy of European unity.

Laniel has staked the life of his government on a drive for a united Europe which the United States feels is necessary in the defense of the free world against Communism.

The Assembly also faces the threat of voting itself out of existence. If a total of 314 deputies vote against Laniel's motion, the cabinet may dissolve Parliament and call new elections.

The French constitution provides if two governments are defeated within 18 months the Assembly may be dismissed and a new one elected.

Right-wing enemies of the French policy leading to a United States of Europe have suffered many defeats in recent elections and probably will not risk their political necks by ousting Laniel and opening the way for a general election.

Search Ends for Jet Down in Lake Superior

HOUGHTON, Mich. (U.P.)—The Coast Guard Thursday abandoned its search for an F-89 jet interceptor that crashed in Lake Superior near here Monday night.

Two crewmen from Trux Field, Madison, were aboard at the time the plane crashed. They were identified by the Air Force as 2nd Lt. Felix Moncla Jr., 27, Moreauville, La., the pilot, and 2nd Lt. Robert Wilson, 22, Ponca City, Okla., a radar observer.

Their jet, stationed at Kinross Field near Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., was tracking an unidentified aircraft picked up by radar over the lake. The other plane was later identified as a Canadian C-47 transport.

Units of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the U. S. Air Force were sent to the area of the crash along with a Coast Guard cutter. The jet went down between Stannard Rock and Manitou Island at the northern end of the Keweenaw peninsula, about 70 miles north of Houghton.

Air Force units gave up the search Wednesday.

Ex-Spy in Canada Goes Behind 'Curtain'

MONTREAL (U.P.)—Fred Rose, Communist member of Parliament who lost his seat and freedom for spying for Russia, has gone behind the Iron Curtain for "health and business" reasons, his wife said Thursday.

He now is in Czechoslovakia "on a business venture," Mrs. Rose said.

Rose, onetime chief of the Communist party's "central control commission" assigned to weed out "traitors, spies, and fascists" from Red ranks in this country, was freed from the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary near here in August, 1951, after serving most of a six-year term for espionage.

Russ Atom Lead Hints by Vishinsky

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (U.P.)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky said Thursday the United States and its Allies may not have atomic and other weapons that the Soviet Union already possesses.

Vishinsky did not elaborate on what types of atomic weapons the Soviet may have produced that are better than the West's but he said flatly the United States has lost its lead in the atomic race.

The Soviet Union is not behind other countries in this respect," he said at a Thanksgiving Day meeting of the United Nations' Main Political Committee.

Vishinsky made his statement in debate on the Soviet's annual "peace" program after British Minister Selwyn Lloyd said Russia is demanding elimination of nuclear weapons only because it is behind the West in this field.

"How can one speak such words at the present time," Vishinsky asked, "when the Soviet Union does have the atomic bombs and does have the hydrogen bomb and when the Soviet Union is not behind other countries in this respect—other countries which, I may add, even possibly do not possess all atomic and other weapons that the Soviet Union already has?"

The United States Atomic Energy Commission has confirmed that Russia has achieved a hydrogen explosion. Since then, Soviet statements have mentioned in veiled terms the possibility Russian scientists have learned more than one way to use the hydrogen power.

Russia first cracked the secret of atomic power with the help of a wide spread espionage ring operating in the United States, Britain, and Canada.

Vishinsky said the idea that the West is superior to Russia in atomic and hydrogen development is "a merry fairy tale, long since exposed."

"This applies to the olden days of 1946-47 when some countries still were dazzled by their successes in atomic secrets and monopolies—monopolies and secrets which they soon and definitely lost," he added.

He said if the UN delegates do not believe this, "listen to your own specialists—your chemists and physicists, who know the progress achieved by the Soviet Union in applied science."

There was some question for a time Thursday over the translation of Vishinsky's remarks. One official English version had Vishinsky saying other nations "do not have" some weapons the Russians do but this was corrected later to read "possibly do not possess."

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U. S. delegate to the UN, did not answer Vishinsky's nuclear claims. But he appealed to the Communists "in God's name" to choose the path to peace.

"We are representatives of the human race, which has become tragically capable of destroying itself," Lodge said. "We will not ward off danger by startling headlines and clever debating points."

State Adverts to Train Par Laymen Prec

A program for training laymen in the use of atomic weapons was announced by the State Department today.

The resolution called for a nationwide campaign of nightly church services to educate the laymen in the use of atomic weapons.

The laymen will execute these meetings to begin with the week of December 15, 1954.

McCarthy Says He 'Feels Kindly' to Administration

LAND O'LAKES, Wis. (AP)—Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) said Friday he doesn't know why White House staff members should be upset over mention of what he called administration mistakes.

In a telephone interview from his Northern Wisconsin vacation spot, Wisconsin's junior senator said that he "feels very kindly" toward the administration and has "praised it to the skies."

"I'm sure President Eisenhower would agree with me, though," he added, "that we all make mistakes and the record isn't perfect."

Commenting particularly on a New York Times dispatch in which James Reston wrote that White House staffers were claiming McCarthy "distorted" the case of John Paton Davies, a State Department career man, the senator said:

"This Davies case is exactly as I presented it. Any claim that I distorted it is completely untrue."

He suggested that newsmen review the record of representations made to the Justice Department by the Jenner Committee in the Davies affair.

McCarthy charged that Davies recommended putting Communists in key spots of the Central Intelligence Agency CIA.

Judge Gives Him Place for Time on His Hands

APPLETON (AP)—A 28-year-old Wausau man who admitted planning and executing a series of cat burglaries because he "didn't have anything to do" has something to do now — time. Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmieg Friday sentenced Eugene R. Sybeldon to four concurrent terms of three to five years each on separate counts of breaking and entering.

He was arrested in an attic Wednesday night when tenants of the house returned early and surprised him. His loot during the series ranged up to a 150-pound safe which he buried in a nearby garden until he could steal tools to break it open.

American Sergeant Admits Strangling Girl, 9, in Japan

TOKYO, Saturday (AP)—U. S. Army authorities announced today that an American sergeant confessed to strangling the 9-year-old daughter of an American Army colonel and leaving her in a drainage ditch to die.

He was identified as M/Sgt. Maurice L. Schick, 29, Cannonsburg, Pa.

The Army said Schick confessed Friday night that he strangled Susan Rothschild, the daughter of Col. Jacquard Rothschild, and left her in a 3-foot deep ditch two blocks from her home in an Army housing area last Saturday.

Schick was chief ward master in the 1869th U. S. Army hospital where Susan was rushed by her father after he found her gagged and lying face down in the ditch. She was pronounced dead on arrival.

The Army said that Schick "volunteered to make a confession" after "intensive questioning." No motive was revealed by the Army.

Schick is married and lives with his wife and two adopted Japanese children in the same housing area where the girl was murdered.

Donald L. Moran, operator of Dinney's Sportsman's bar, 205 S. Baldwin st., paid a $25 fine in Superior Court Friday for permitting a 19-year-old girl to loiter in his tavern last Saturday night.

The girl, Theresa A. Coghlen, 820 E. Johnson st., forfeited $20 bail in Superior Court Monday for loitering in the tavern. Police found her there after receiving a complaint that she was not old enough to enter bars.

Truax Field Asks Return of Parts from Crashed Jet

Persons who took parts of the F-80C Scorpion jet which crashed and exploded Monday afternoon on the Lake Wingra shore, are asked by Truax Field officials to turn them in at any of the city's fire stations.

Capt. Frederick Murphy, Truax flying safety officer, said the parts are necessary to help the Air Force board of inquiry determine the cause of the crash that killed Lt. John W. Schmidt and Capt. Glen E. Collins.

The fire companies, who have offered their stations as collection places for the plane parts, are located at 18 S. Webster st., 301 N. Broom st., 1217 Williamson st., 1329 W. Dayton st., 2137 Atwood ave., 957 S. Park st., 2410 Monroe st., and 407 North st.

Preliminary Studies of Spanish Bases End

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy announced Friday that preliminary studies of proposed U. S. naval and Air Force bases in Spain have been completed and "planning operations" will start immediately.

The Navy said the contractor will be chosen later. It said most of the work will be done by Spanish contractors under supervision of an American firm or combination of firms. The Navy's bureau of yards and docks will administer the whole program.

U. S. Won't Ask UN Probe of Atrocities
